NINE GENERATIONS OF SPIRITUAL LEADERS

5. Neph, eldest son of Helaman, filled
... the judgment-seat with justice and equity; yea, he did keep the commandments of God, and did walk in the ways of his father. (Helaman 3:37.)

But the faith of Neph was put to the severest kind of tests. Dissension was followed by bloodshed, and, according to the now familiar pattern, the rebellious were driven to the Lamanites. The Lamanites invaded and captured Zarahemla the following year, and all Nephite possessions in the land southward. Never had such disaster as befallen the Nephites, who seemed powerless to hurl their enemies back. Then it was that two righteous, humble men did more than all the Nephite armies could do.

Weary because of the iniquity of his people, Neph resigned the judgment seat, and "took it upon him to preach the word of God" all the remainder of his days, and his brother, Lehi, also, all the remainder of his days; for they remembered the words which their father, Helaman, spake unto them. "Nor was their message delivered to their own people alone, but they preached with great power among the cities of their enemies, the Lamanites. To the great astonishment of all, eight thousand Lamanites in captured Zarahemla and vicinity were baptized. Directing their steps next to the very heart of the Lamanite domain, they were seized by an army of Lamanites and cast into prison. When their captors came to put them to death, they saw Nephi and Lehi encircled by fire. The earth and the walls of the prison shook, and fear came upon their captors. A voice spoke, calling upon these savage folk to repent and serve the Lord; angels ministered to them; and upwards of three hundred were converted; and by the testimony of these converts a greater part of the Lamanites were convinced. Thus a most remarkable reformation was wrought. They laid down their arms, forsook their hatred for the Nephites and the traditions of their fathers, and even yielded up to the Nephites the cities they had wrested from them in battle. In a short time the situation was so reversed that Lamanites were sending missionaries to the Nephites, being more righteous than they.

By B.C. 29 there was once more peace in all the land.

This, however, did not long endure. Wickedness and the rise of the Gadianton band and the murder of the chief judge followed in fell sequence. Soon Nephi's prophetic words were rejected by all the people and there ensued a state of awful wickedness. The heart of this devoted servant of God "was swallowed with sorrow within his breast."

Few men in the history of this world have so proved their dependability that the Lord could entrust them with power to seal upon earth and it would be sealed in heaven. Nephi was one so entrusted. God gave him mighty power in word and deed. He foretold to an angry multitude the murder of their chief judge by the latter's own brother. He was commissioned to smite the earth with famine and pestilence, that the people might be brought to repentance and not perish in warfare. Thousands did die of the famine, but at last the people were humbled, repented, and swept the band of wicked Gadiantons from among them till they became extinct. In this righteous state they esteemed Nephi a great prophet and man of God; and Lehi, his brother, was not behind him a whit in righteousness.

Once more the downward trend of exceeding great peace was dissension, wickedness, robbery, and war; to darken the last days of this great prophet. Samuel, the Lamanite, came and uttered his memorable prophecy to unheeding ears. In this period of gathering gloom, Satan had once more great hold upon the people.

In the ninety-first year of the judges, six hundred years after Lehi left Jerusalem, Nephi, the son of Helaman,
... departed out of the land of Zarahemla, giving charge unto his son Nephi, who was his eldest son, concerning the plates of brass, and all the records which had been kept, and all those things which had been kept sacred, from the departure of Lehi out of Jerusalem. Then he departed out of the land, and whither he went, no man knew; and his son Nephi did keep the records in his stead. (III Nephi 1:2-3.)

6. Nephi the Disciple, Son of Nephi

Like his illustrious father, this younger Nephi was destined to be the leading spirit of his nation. In the very year of his father's departure he was in peril of his life. Enemies of the believers in the coming of Christ had asserted that the time set for the sign to be given that the Savior was born had passed, and these unbelievers even set a day when all Christians should be put to death. Nephi, deeply sorrowful, bowed down in prayer, crying mightily unto the Lord, in behalf of his people, all the day long. Then the voice of the Lord spoke to Nephi, saying:
Lift up your head and be of good cheer; for behold, the time is at hand, and on this night shall the sign be given, and on the morrow come I into the world. (III Nephi 1:13.)

There was no darkness that night, but it continued light as midnight, and a new star appeared. The unbelievers were frustrated and the saints delivered. Most of the people were converted by these evidences and through the subsequent testimony and preaching of Nephi.

Yet the rising generation among both Nephites and Lamanites proved wayward. Gadianton robbers became numerous, and gained the upper hand, overthrowing the government, and wars threatened the utter destruction of the Nephites. Nephi had the sad duty of recording the dreary chronicle of a wicked people, with the all too brief period of repentance following each dire season of punishment. Laws were set at defiance, and prophets warned the elders were put to death. In the midst of all this, Nephi did his full duty as head of the church.

... and Nephi did minister with power and with great authority. And it came to pass that they were angry with him, even because he had greater power than they, for it were not possible that they could disbelieve his words, for so great was his faith on the Lord Jesus Christ that angels did minister unto him daily.

And in the name of Jesus did he cast out devils and unclean spirits; and even his brother did he raise from the dead, after he had been sewed and suffered death by the people. (III Nephi 7:17-19.)

Of Interest to Norwegians

Among the helpful books recently acquired by the Genealogical Society is the following: Vore Naune, en Etymologisk Navnebok, med Fylldige Utredninger, by Olaf Ray.

This was recommended to the Society by Elder John A. Widtsoe, who has ever been on the alert to detect any books which will prove of service in the genealogical field.

His comment on this volume is as follows:

I looked over the book with care and with interest. While it is based on etymological research, it can be of very great use to those who are making genealogical researches, especially in Norwegian and related languages. It gives the possible variations of certain names, indications also of the sex to which the name is usually applied, which sometimes is very difficult to decide by the researcher who does not know the language intimately. There are many other possibilities in the use of this little book. It is the most complete one I have seen, and no doubt will be of occasional value for reference by our Scandinavian and old English researchers.

Genealogy

At the time of the crucifixion of the Savior, great destruction visited this land, and the wicked were utterly destroyed. Afterwards the Savior appeared, and from among the survivors he chose twelve apostles. Nephi was honored by being the first apostle chosen. The Lord called him to come forth from the midst of the multitude, "And Nephi arose and went forth, and bowed himself before the Lord, and he did kiss his feet." Among the others chosen were Nephi's brother, Timothy, whom he had raised from the dead, and also Nephi's son, Jonas.

From among this twelve, three requested permission of the Lord to remain on the earth to minister to the inhabitants and to bring souls unto Christ, never to endure the pains of death; but to be changed in the twinkling of an eye from mortality to immortality when the Savior shall come in glory to rule and reign. Mormon knew the names of these three Nephites, but was forbidden of the Lord to record their names. It is possible that one or more of the above named disciples were included among those highly privileged ones. By the year 100 A.D. the rest of the disciples "had all gone to the paradise of God."
