The Writing of the Book of Mormon

Author(s): Francis W. Kirkham
Source: Improvement Era, Vol. 44, No. 6 (June 1941)
Published by: The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints
Page(s): 341–343, 370–375

Abstract: This article is an examination of the people and dates involved in translating the Book of Mormon. Very little of the translation occurred between the time Martin Harris lost the 116 pages of the Book of Lehi and Oliver Cowdery began serving as scribe on April 7, 1829. The author also provides information regarding the hand-written manuscripts of the Book of Mormon.

Archived by permission.
THE WRITING of the BOOK of MORMON

Concerning the Time, the Place, the Scribes, and the Printing

By DR. FRANCIS W. KIRKHAM

AN AIR VIEW OF CUMORAH TODAY

It may seem unnecessary to prove spiritual realities by scholar's research, but the Lord Himself has said that in the mouths of many witnesses would His truth be established. Here is an ancient record translated "by the gift and power of God." The evidence that it was so translated is the subject of this article by Dr. Kirkham, who has gone into the record contemporary with Joseph Smith's day to find the facts that leave no other possible conclusion.

The personal knowledge of these facts by Mr. Tucker is affirmed by a letter written by S. S. Harding, one-time governor of Utah Territory, dated Milan, Indiana, June 1, 1867, and printed in the appendix of the above-mentioned book:

When I was in Palmyra in 1829, I went with Joe Smith at his special request, to his father's house, in company with Martin Harris and Oliver Cowdery for the purpose of hearing read his wonderful 'translations' from the sacred plates. . . . I was in the printing office with yourself and also the three Mormons named, when the proof sheet of the first form of the book was revised by you.

This letter also states:

In October following, 1829, the printing was considerably advanced and the ultimate issue of the Book of Mormon had become a fixed fact.

(Continued on page 342)
The Writing of the Book of Mormon

(Continued from page 341)

Another direct statement of the time of beginning and completing the printing of the Book of Mormon comes from an interview with Mr. Gilbert at his home in Palmyra in 1888 by Andrew Jenson, Edward Stevenson, and Joseph S. Black. (See Infancy of the Church by Andrew Jenson, page 37):

Our next man was Major John H. Gilbert, the person who set the type for the first edition of the Book of Mormon in Egbert Grandin’s printing office fifty-eight years ago... Of the 580 pages of which the book consisted, he set in type about 500 pages himself. The work of printing the book, he remembers distinctly, was commenced in August, 1829, and finished in March, 1830.

The publisher of the Wayne Sentinel, of Palmyra, has preserved for us the exact date of the close of the printing of the Book of Mormon. The following excerpts from this paper printed at Palmyra are quoted in Source Material Concerning the Origin of the Book of Mormon, by Francis W. Kirkham, pages 144-145. The original papers are in the New York State Library, Albany, New York:

We are requested to announce that the Book of Mormon will be ready for sale in the course of next week, March 19, 1830.

On March 26, 1830, and for four consecutive weeks, thereafter, the paper published the preface of the Book of Mormon followed by this statement:

The above work containing six hundred pages of large duodecimos is now for sale, wholesale and retail, at the Palmyra Book Store by Howard and Grandin.

The evidence appears complete, that the printing of the Book of Mormon began in August, 1829, and was completed not later than March 26, 1830.

The Time and the Place of the Writing

For the answer as to the time and place of writing, it seems advisable first to review briefly the statements of the Prophet himself from the time he received the plates until he met Oliver Cowdery and from then until the translation was completed.

---

First Nephi, Chapter 7, verses 4-17 (page 46 in the first edition) as it appears in the first of two original manuscripts of the Book of Mormon. Evidence shows it to be in the handwriting of Oliver Cowdery, who wrote the translation as “it fell from the lips of the Prophet.” The manuscript from which this photograph was taken is in the Church Historian’s Office, Salt Lake City, Utah.

342
"On the 22d of September, 1827," he writes, "the same heavenly messenger [Moroni] delivered the plates to me." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, p. 18.) Unable to translate at Palmyra because of opposition, in December, 1827, he returned to his home in Harmony, Pennsylvania. He again narrates:

Immediately after my arrival there I commenced copying the characters on the plates. . . . Sometime in the month of February, Martin Harris came to our place, got the characters which I had drawn [i.e. copied] off the plates and started with them to the city of New York. . . . He [Martin Harris] returned to Palmyra and arrived again at my home about the 12th of April, 1828, and commenced writing for me while I translated the plates, which we continued until the 14th of June following, by which time he had written 116 pages of manuscript on foolscap paper. (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, pp. 19, 21.)

In the meantime, while Martin Harris was gone with the writings, [the 116 pages which he wrote] I went to visit my father's family at Manchester. I continued there for a short season, and then returned to my place in Pennsylvania. Immediately after my return home, I was walking out a little distance, when, behold, the former heavenly messenger appeared and handed me the Urim and Thummim again. I inquired of the Lord through it and obtained the following. (See Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 3. Also Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 22.) After I had obtained the above revelation, both the plates and the Urim and Thummim were taken from me again; but in a few days they were returned to me. . . . (See Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 10; also Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 23.) (B. H. Roberts estimates the time of this revelation (Section 10) as August or September, 1828. Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 23.)

Lucy Mack Smith fixes the date when the Urim and Thummim were returned to the Prophet as September 22, 1828. (See History of the Prophet Joseph by Lucy Smith, page 124.)

Mother Smith further said: "A few months after Joseph received them [the Urim and Thummim] he inquired of the Lord, and obtained the following revelation." (Ibid., page 126; Doctrine and Covenants, 10.) This would put the date of Section 10 as November or December, 1828. The date published in early editions of the Doctrine and Covenants is May, 1829. As explained by B. H. Roberts, however, this is evidently incorrect. (See Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 23, also Doctrine and Covenants Commentary, page 78.)

Whatever the date, it was after July, 1828, and before February, 1829.

This revelation (Section 10, Doctrine and Covenants) indicates that up to the time it was received no further translation had been made of the Book of Mormon. Note the following:

1. Now, behold, I say unto you, that because you delivered up those writings [116 pages lost by Martin Harris] which you had power given unto you to translate, by the means of the Urim and Thummim, into the hands of a wicked man, you have lost them.

2. And you also lost your gift at the same time, and your mind became darkened.

3. Nevertheless, it is now restored unto you again; therefore see that you are faithful and continue on unto the finishing of the remainder of the work of translation as you have begun.

4. Do not run faster or labor more than you have strength and means provided to enable you to translate; but be diligent unto the end. (Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 10:1-4.)

The Prophet writes:

I did not, however, go immediately to translating [following the time he received the revelation, Section 10] but went to laboring with my hands upon a small farm which I had purchased of my wife's father in order to provide for my family. In the month of February, 1829, my father came to visit us, at which time I received the following revelation for him. (Doctrine and Covenants, Sec. 4, dated February, 1829, Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 28.)

The following I applied for and obtained [March, 1829] at the request of the aforementioned Martin Harris. (Doctrine and Covenants 5: Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, pages 28-31.) (Continued on page 370)
THE IMPROVEMENT ERA, JUNE, 1941

The Achievements of Another "Era Year"
(Concluded from page 369)

Oliver Cowdery came to my house, until which time I had never seen him. . . . Two days after the arrival of Mr. Cowdery (being the 7th of April), I commenced to translate the Book of Mormon, and he began to write for me. (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 32.)

WRITE Oliver Cowdery on September 7, 1834:

Near the time of the setting of the sun, Sabbath evening, April 5th, 1829, [see Messenger and Advocate, Oct., 1834] my natural eyes for the first time beheld this

THE WRITING OF THE BOOK OF MORMON

(Continued from page 343)

Without any other comment, the Prophet tells of meeting Oliver Cowdery on April 5, as follows:

On the fifth day of April, 1829, [see Times and Seasons, Vol. 3, page 382] 370

Oliver Cowdery came to my house, until which time I had never seen him. . . . Two days after the arrival of Mr. Cowdery (being the 7th of April), I commenced to translate the Book of Mormon, and he began to write for me. (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, page 32.)

WRITE Oliver Cowdery on September 7, 1834:

Near the time of the setting of the sun, Sabbath evening, April 5th, 1829, [see Messenger and Advocate, Oct., 1834] my natural eyes for the first time beheld this brother. He then resided in Harmony, Susquehanna County, Pennsylvania. ... On Monday the 6th, I assisted him in arranging some business of a temporary nature and on Tuesday the 7th, he commenced to write the Book of Mormon. These days were never to be forgotten—to sit under the sound of a voice dictated by the inspiration of heaven, awakened to the utmost gratitude of this bosom. Day after day I continued, uninterrupted, to write from his mouth, as he translated with the Urim and Thummim, or as the Nephites would have said 'Interpreters,' the history or record called the Book of Mormon.

THE WRITING OF THE BOOK OF MORMON

Do these statements by the translator and scribe mean that they commenced at the beginning of the book or at a page which had been written after the date of receiving Section 10 of the Doctrine and Covenants as noted above?

Note that Oliver Cowdery says, "I continued, uninterrupted, to write," and the Prophet adds to the above statement, "During the month of April, I continued to translate and he to write with little cessation." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. I, page 35.) ... "We still continued the work of translation when in the ensuing month of May, etc." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. I, page 39.) And thus from time to time the Prophet describes the writing until he announces that the translation is completed as if he were describing both the beginning and the end of the great work entrusted to him. A careful reading of both texts lends to the belief that both writers intend to say they commenced at the beginning of the book or very close to the beginning, and worked continually (as circumstances permitted) until the work was finished. There is no intimation by the Prophet in his own writings that after the loss of the 116 manuscript pages he translated any part of the Book of Mormon before April 7, 1829.

Regarding this question, Mother Smith writes:

Joseph had been so hurried with his secular affairs, that he could not proceed with his spiritual concerns so fast as was necessary for the speedy completion of the work; there was also another disadvantage under which he labored; his wife had so much of her time taken up with the care of her house, that she could write for him but a small portion of the time. On account of these embarrassments, Joseph called upon the Lord, three days before the arrival of Samuel and Oliver, to send him a scribe. (History of the Prophet Joseph, by Lucy Smith, page 131.)

Mother Smith does not state that Emma Smith wrote any part of the Book of Mormon before Oliver Cowdery arrived. She seems to try to explain that Emma, Joseph's wife, had not time to write, therefore the need of a scribe. However, verse 30, Section 5, Doctrine and Covenants, given in March, 1829, reads: "When thou hast translated a few more pages, thou shalt stop for a season, even until I command thee again; then thou mayest translate again." This indicates a small part was written by Emma Smith before April 7.

Emma Smith, wife of the Prophet, testifies she wrote for the Prophet, but she does not state when she wrote or that she wrote before the arrival of Oliver Cowdery. (See Saints' Advocate, October, 1879; see also "Manner of Translating the Book of Mormon." by Francis W. Kirkham, Improvement Era, October, 1939, page 630.)

To the knowledge of the writer, there are no other statements in early Church history that refer to the date of the beginning of the writing of the Book of Mormon.

Fortunately, photographs of both manuscripts of the Book of Mormon are available corresponding to part of page 16 of the first edition (I Nephi, Chapter 7, present edition). If both these copies at this beginning part of the translation are in the handwriting of Oliver Cowdery, then no more than sixteen pages could have been written before April 7, 1829, by anyone except Oliver Cowdery, as he first saw the Prophet and wrote at that date.

The question of whether or not the two copies are written by Cowdery is simplified by the fact that not more than four persons wrote on either manuscript. Note the following citations:

In 1884, George Reynolds, in the Contributor, Vol. V, pages 366-367, published the following document:

A description of the portion of the manuscript, mentioned by Sister Kimball and now in the hands of President Joseph F. Smith, will doubtless be of interest to the readers of the Contributor. (Sarah Kimball had previously received from Major Biderman, husband of Emma Smith, a part of the original manuscript of the Book of Mormon which was described and gave it to President Joseph F. Smith. Major Biderman had taken it from the cornerstone of the Nauvoo House shortly before he gave it to Sarah Kimball.) It consists of twenty pages of somewhat rough, unrulled writing paper, much resembling small bill-cap than any other size of paper now made, being a little less than fifteen and one-half inches long and full six and one-half inches wide.

The paper is now tinged brown or yellow by time and damp and in some places is indecipherable. The page numbers are numbered 3 to 22, pages 1 and 2 having been lost. The manuscript commences at the end descibed verse of chapter 1 Nephi, (i.e. the second chapter of the Book of Mormon), and continues to the 35th verse of the 13th chapter of the same book. At the top of each page is a heading showing its principal contents. These headings, as far as they can be deciphered, are as follows:

1. (Undecipherable). 2. Nephi goeth up to Jerusalem to ... 5. 3. Nephi slayeth Laban. 7. Nephi obtains the records. 9. Lehi searcheth the records. 11. Lehi prophesieth concerning his seed. 10. Laman and Lemuel rebel against Nephi. 11. Laman and Lemuel repent and (go) with Nephi. 12. Lehi's dream of the precious fruit. 13. Lehi fears for Laman and Lemuel, and he exHORTs them. 14. Lehi prophesieth of the Messiah. 15. Nephi desireth the spirit of prophecy. 16. Nephi caught ... 17. Nephi beholdest the lamb of God, etc. 18. The Messiah crucified (?) etc. 19-22, (undecipherable).

The manuscript is in two, if not three, handwritings. Pages 7 to 18, inclusive, appear to have been written by Oliver Cowdery. Pages 3 to 6 are written in what looks like a woman's handwriting, possibly that of Emma Smith, while the handwriting on pages 19 to 22, if not the same, very much resembles that of pages 3 to 6. The only division made in the manuscript is into chapters. The sentences are not divided by punctuation marks and are seldom commenced with capital letters.

The photograph of that manuscript shown in this article is under the caption "Laman and Lemuel rebelle against Nephi." This is part of pages 7 to 18, which, in the opinion of George Reynolds, was written by Oliver Cowdery.

S. A. Burgess, historian of the Reorganized Church, Independence, Missouri, where the only complete manuscript of the Book of Mormon may be seen, states that four persons wrote that manuscript, the handwriting of Oliver Cowdery and Christian Whitmer being identified by members of the Whitmer family, and that of Emma Smith by her two sons, Joseph and Alexander. Other writings of Oliver Cowdery were compared with his writing in the manuscript as additional proof. The handwriting in the manuscript resembles that of Whitmer and Harris. (See Saints' Herald, January 30, 1934, page 139.) Thus both manuscripts are identified as being in the handwriting of Oliver Cowdery.

Let us consider further the photographs of the writings of both manuscripts.
scripts which form part of page 16 of the Book of Mormon, first edition. There are many similarities in the writing of these two manuscripts as shown by the photographs which are printed herewith (pp. 342, 343). One was written for the printer three months later than the other. In the one written for the printer we might expect capitalization of proper names, more consideration of syllabication and punctuation. The first one would have been written rapidly as the words "fell from the lips of the Prophet," the scribe anticipating additional time later for the correction of grammar, spelling, punctuation, and capitalization. However, neither copy is correct in these requirements; yet one is more correct than the other.

The expert who compares the photographs is not required therefore to determine that they are exactly alike, only that these two copies are more nearly like each other than either copy is like the other three writings of the manuscript. But he need not go this far. As we know, Oliver Cowdery wrote most of both copies; we need only ask: "Is the writing pictured on these two photographs similar to the writing of the person who wrote the larger part of both manuscripts?"

In the opinion of the writer, these two copies were written by Oliver Cowdery and, if so, it is conclusive evidence that the sixteenth page of the Book of Mormon was written after April 7, 1829, when Oliver Cowdery first began the work of scribe.

Quotations follow from original sources stating that Oliver Cowdery wrote both manuscripts, except for a little help from about three other persons—assistants who relieved him for short periods.

It should be noted first that both Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery state they commenced on April 7, 1829, to translate and to write and that they continued until they finished the manuscripts. Neither the Prophet nor Oliver Cowdery mentions any other person who assisted them.

At a special conference held at Kanesville, Iowa, October 21, 1848, and presided over by Apostle Orson Hyde, Oliver Cowdery was present and made the following remarks:

Friends and Brethren, my name is Cowdery, Oliver Cowdery. In the early history of this Church I stood identified with her, as one in her councils. . . . I wrote with my own pen, the entire Book of Mormon (save a few pages) as it fell from the lips of the Prophet Joseph Smith, as he translated it by the gift and power of God. . . . That book is true. Sidney Rigdon did not write it; Mr. Spaulding did not write it; I wrote myself as it fell from the lips of the Prophet. (See Contributor, Vol. 5, page 446; also Historical Record, Vol. VI, page 201.)

In an interview with David Whitmer published in the Historical Record, Vol. VI, p. 208, Elder Orson Pratt asked Mr. Whitmer: "Have you in your possession the original manuscript of the Book of Mormon?"

David Whitmer answered, "I have; they are in Oliver Cowdery's handwriting."

In the interview with Andrew Jensen, Edward Stevenson, and Joseph S. Black, 1878, quoted above, the following appears (See also Millennial Star, Vol. 40, page 773):

Next day, Sunday, September 8. . . . David Whitmer brought out the manuscript of the Book of Mormon. We examined them closely and those who knew the handwriting pronounced the whole of them, excepting comparatively few pages, to be in the handwriting of Oliver Cowdery. It was thought that these few pages were in the handwriting of Emma Smith and John and Christian Whitmer.

Pomeroy Tucker, who helped read the proof for the Book of Mormon (also quoted above) states on page 35 of his book, Mormonism, Its Origin, Rise and Progress:

Translations and interpolations were now entered upon by the Prophet, and manuscript specimens with some of the literally transcribed characters, were shown to people, including ministers and other gentlemen of learning and influence [then follows a list of the contents].

The manuscripts were in the handwriting of one Oliver Cowdery, which had been written down by him, as he and Smith declared, from the translations, word for word, as made by the latter with the aid of the mammoth spectacles or Urim and Thummim. (Pages 35-36.)

The loss of the first translations [written by Martin Harris] checked for a time the progress of Mormon events. . . . Some six months passed when the announcement was given out that a new and complete translation of the Book of Mormon had been made by the Prophet, which was ready for the press. The original manuscript, like the first, were in Cowdery's handwriting. (Page 48.)

This implies a part of the original manuscript in the handwriting of Oliver Cowdery was shown to Mr. Tucker at the time of the negotiations for the printing, and that the second manuscript, or the one copied by Oliver Cowdery, was also in his handwriting. Note the following by Mr. Tucker:

In June, 1829, Smith the Prophet, his brother Hyrum, and Harris, the believer, applied to Mr. Egbert B.Grandin, then publisher of the Wayne Sentinel at Palmyra (now deceased,) for his price to do the work of one edition of three thousand copies. Harris offered to pay or secure payment if they made a calculation of the cost. (Pages 50-51.)

By this statement one is justified in concluding that nearly all the translation was completed at this time for the press. Joseph Smith could give the whole number of the folios was stated, whereby could be made a calculation of the cost. (Pages 50-51.)

According to Mr. Tucker, a contract to print was not immediately made. He describes a visit by "the same Mormon party" to Mr. Thurlow Weed, of the Anti-Masonic Inquirer at Rochester, and to Mr. Elihu P. Marshall, a book publisher. Both refused to print the book. (Page 52.) Mr. Tucker continues:

Whereupon, the Saints renewed the request upon Mr. Grandin, one reason the manuscripts were to be delivered and proof sheets examined daily by them at the printing office . . . each morning carrying to the printing office the installment required for the day, and withdrawing it the same evening.

This statement by an anti-Mormon writer gives proof of the method of delivering the copy to the printer as described by Mother Smith a little later in this article. It is also evidence that some time elapsed after the translation until the printing contract was signed. (See Mormonism, Its Origin, Rise, and Progress, by Pomeroy Tucker, page 9.)

These same facts are repeated in a letter by S. S. Harding, published by Thomas Gregg in the Prophet of Palmyra, pages 40 and 47.

As quoted above, the writing in the manuscript now in the possession of the Reorganized Church, at Independence, is identified by many persons as that of Oliver Cowdery.

The conclusion is that only a very few pages of the Book of Mormon were translated before April 7, 1829.

May we return to the question: At what time between April 7 and August, 1829, was the translation of the Book of Mormon completed? "In the beginning of the month of June," writes the Prophet . . .
THE WRITING OF THE BOOK OF MORMON

"we accepted the invitation" [to go to the home of the Whitmers at Fayette, Seneca County, New York] "and there resided until the translation was finished and the copyright secured." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, pp. 48-49. Also Times and Seasons, vol. 4, p. 885.)

"... In the course of the translation we ascertained that three special witnesses were to be provided by the Lord, to whom He would grant that they should see the plates from which this work (the Book of Mormon) should be translated: and that these witnesses should bear record of the same, as will be found recorded." (See Book of Ether, Chapter 5:2-3, and 4, and also II Nephi, Chapter 11:3.) (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, p. 52.) Then follows the description of the appearance of Moroni to the three witnesses.

The revelation given at this time is dated June, 1829. (See Doctrine and Covenants, Section 18.)

The Prophet adds: "Soon after these things had transpired, the following additional testimony was obtained. [The plates were shown by the Prophet to eight other witnesses.] ... Meantime we continued to translate, at intervals when not under the necessity of attending to the numerous inquirers who now began to visit us, etc." (Documentary History of the Church, Vol. 1, page 59.) Sections 18 and 20 of the Doctrine and Covenants, both dated June, 1829, appear in the record, after which the Prophet states: "And at this time, our translation drawing to a close, we went to Palmyra, Wayne County, New York, secured the copyright, and agreed with Egbert B. Grandin to print five thousand copies for the sum of three thousand dollars." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. I, p. 71.)

It would appear by these writings of the Prophet that the translation was completed sometime near the close of the month of June.

This conclusion is further justified by the fact that the place of the translation in the Book of Ether where the three witnesses were shown the plates by Moroni is within forty-one pages of the completion of the book.

Thus less than nine per cent of the book that time remained to be translated, or specifically, 547 pages had been translated and 41 pages were left to be translated at the time Moroni appeared to the three witnesses.

A definite statement of the time of the completion of the translation of the Book of Mormon is made by David Whitmer. The Kansas City Journal, June 5, 1881, quotes him in part as follows:

"I, as well as all my father's family, Smith's wife, Oliver Cowdery, and Martin Harris, were present during the translation [already explained by Mr. Whitmer at his father's home at Fayette, New York]. . . . The translation at my father's occupied about one month, that is, from June 1, 1829, to July 1, 1829. (Quoted in Vol V., Historical Record, page 200, and also quoted in Thos. Gregg, The Prophet of Palmyra, page 28.)

In an interview with David Whitmer by Joseph F. Smith and Orson Pratt on September 7, 1879, (Historical Record, 208) Elder Pratt asked Mr. Whitmer: "Do you remember what time you saw the plates?" Answer: It was in June, 1829, the latter part of the month, and the eight witnesses saw them, I think, the next day or the day after [i.e. one or two later]." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. 1, p. 59.) Sections 18 and 20 of the Doctrine and Covenants, both dated June, 1829, appear in the record, after which the Prophet states: "Meantime, our translation drawing to a close, we went to Palmyra, Wayne County, New York, secured the copyright, and agreed with Egbert B. Grandin to print five thousand copies for the sum of three thousand dollars." (Documentary History of the Church, vol. I, p. 71.)

It would appear by these writings of the Prophet that the translation was completed sometime near the close of the month of June.

This conclusion is further justified by the fact that the place of the translation in the Book of Ether where the three witnesses were shown the plates by Moroni is within forty-one pages of the completion of the book.

Thus less than nine per cent of the book that time remained to be translated, or specifically, 547 pages had been translated and 41 pages

THE IMPROVEMENT ERA, JUNE, 1941

Would not indicate the time the translation was completed.

From the above quotations the reader will note that the Prophet states that he resided at Fayette until the translation was completed, that David Whitmer writes that the translation there continued from June 1 to July 1, and that the witnesses saw the plates late in June when only 47 pages of the book remained to be translated. Thus from these witnesses, we conclude the translation was completed about July 1, 1829, or shortly thereafter.

This conclusion is further supported by the fact that a copy of the manuscript was made after this time to be ready for the printing, which began in August, 1829.

Mother Smith writes as follows:

Soon after this, Joseph secured the copyright, and before he returned to Pennsylvania, where he had left his wife, he received a commandment, which was in substance as follows:

First, that Oliver Cowdery should transcribe the whole manuscript. Second, that he should take but one copy at a time to the office, so that if one copy should get destroyed, there would still be a copy remaining. Third, that in going to and from the office, he should always have a guard to attend him for the purpose of protecting the manuscript. Fourth, that a guard should be kept constantly on the watch, both night and day, about the house, to protect the manuscript from malicious persons, who would infest the house for the purpose of destroying the manuscript. All these things were strictly attended to, as the Lord commanded Joseph. After giving these instructions, Joseph returned to Pennsylvania.

(Continued on page 374)
THE WRITING OF THE BOOK OF MORMON

(Continued from page 373)

(History of the Prophet Joseph, by Lucy Smith, pages 142-143.)

It appears that the entire copy might have been prepared before the printing began for the reason that the original copy would be kept at a separate place to guard against loss or destruction. In any event, one month to six or seven weeks would be no more than sufficient time to prepare the manuscript, arrange for, and actually begin the printing which, from the evidence presented herewith, began in August, 1829.

The conclusion is this:

The translation and writing of the Book of Mormon commenced April 7, 1829, at page 16 or a little before and was completed about July 1, 1829. The printing began in August, 1829, and was completed the week of March 19-26, 1830, by Egbert Grandin at Palmyra, New York.

These facts concerning the origin of this strange book are as challenging today as when Orson Pratt wrote:

This book must be either true or false.

If true, it is one of the most important messages ever sent from God to man. If false, it is one of the most cunning, wicked, bold, deep-laid impositions ever palmed upon the world, calculated to deceive and ruin millions who will receive it as the word of God.

Or when Daniel P. Kidder, an early, bitter anti-Mormon writer declared:

Upon the Book of Mormon rests the whole fabric of Mormonism; let us examine whether it be not a sandy foundation...let us see whether it is from above or below...let us prove whether its waters are sweet or bitter. (Mormonism and the Mormons. 1842, page 19, Daniel P. Kidder.)

Here is a book of six hundred pages that was prepared for the printer in about seventy-five working days. It was dictated from day to day by a young man not yet twenty-four years of age. Many difficulties interfered: the interruptions of inquirers, the removal of the translator from Pennsylvania to New York, the slow writing in long hand, etc. No corrections were made in the manuscript. There was no review to make sure that the contents of the book were consistent with its own claims. The translator dictated by the gift and power of God. Those who wrote for him would have detected deception or fraud.

Whence came the contents of this book of sacred scripture, a book claimed by the translator to contain the fulness of the Gospel, the actual words of the resurrected Christ? Surely not from the mind of the one who dictated as another wrote. He was unlearned, only a farm boy. The accomplishment was far beyond his natural ability to achieve. Whence and when, we repeat, did he obtain the marvelous doctrines of the book and the history of a people who lived on this continent for more than one thousand years?

The answer must lie in its claims. Joseph Smith translated by the gift and power of God the sacred record of an ancient people, "preserved by divine power to come forth by the power of God, to convince the Jew and the Gentile that Jesus is the Christ, the Eternal God."

We do not comprehend nor can we understand, yet we may know for ourselves by the same power by which this book appeared, whether or not it came from God. The book contains this sacred promise:

And when ye shall receive these things.

NOW is the Time to Get

That BIG WEEDER with

The rod 8" behind the rear frame. The gooseneck and frame 4" higher giving practically 12" more clearance than most competing weeder.

and

It is built HEAVIER throughout

The Calkins "Rec-La-Mator"

Farmers must save their stubble to build up the humus content of their soil if they are to stop its washing. If heavy stubble is plowed under on light soil, ordinary weeder often clog. CALKINS WEEDERS have always had the greatest clearance and "ARE GUARANTEED" to work under any and all conditions where any weeder will work—and—they have proved they will work where many others absolutely failed—but—farmers have been asking for a weeder with super-clearance.

Two Models available—The "REC-LA-MATOR" and the REGULAR

Write for prices and literature.

MOUNTAIN STATES IMPLEMENT CO.
OGDEN, UTAH
The Writing of the Book of Mormon

I would exhort you that ye would ask God, the Eternal Father, in the name of Christ, if these things are not true; and if ye shall ask with a sincere heart, with real intent, having faith in Christ, he will manifest the truth of it unto you, by the power of the Holy Ghost. (See Moroni 10:4.)

By and through this book, faith in Jesus Christ the Son of the Eternal God may become a vital force among men and lead them into ways of peace and happiness. For this purpose it is sent forth. Liberty and freedom rest upon morality, and morality rests upon faith in God. May the time be hastened when the purpose and the message of this book shall come to all men.

Tisagago

(Continued from page 339)

head, and listening attentively picked up the sick bleating of sheep, the shrill whinnies of horses, the mooing of distressed cows.

Something was wrong at the ranch of White Neighbor. This Tisagago knew. That she was more than likely the only one who realized it, she also recognized. Old and tired as she was, she pulled herself up, and started again toward the cabin. New determination marked her worn brown face and gave strength to her limbs.

When she reached the cabin, she did not knock on the door. She pushed it open, and stumbled into a small room.

Her quick eyes found White Neighbor immediately. He was lying on a narrow cot in one corner of the room. His face was flushed with fever. He tried to raise up when he saw her, but sank back weakly as she moved toward his bed.

"Where you hurt?" Tisagago asked, carefully shaping and enunciating the words.

His hand pressed his stomach, and he smiled at her. She knew suddenly, by his smile and the gladness on his face, that she would not be afraid to ask him about the book; that she could have come sooner, with it, as a gift.

"Where you people?" she questioned again.

"Gone Salt Lake. Two days now."

Then she understood. Here was need, and there was no time to go for a white neighbor; no time to

(Concluded on page 376)